Respondents Tierra Group, a/k/a Tierra Group Properties, a/k/a/ Tierra Group Companies, a/k/a Tierra Group, Inc. (“TIERRA”), Preservation Trust Corporation, a/k/a Preservation Corporation, a/k/a Preservation Trust Company (“PRESERVATION”), Partnership Preservation Trust, a/k/a Preservation Trust Corporation Limited Partnership (“PARTNERSHIP PT”), Caterpillar Foundation Properties, a/k/a Caterpillar Foundation Properties Limited Partnership (“CATERPILLAR”) and Rene L. Couch (“COUCH”) elect to permanently waive their right to a hearing and appeal under Articles 11 and 12 of the Securities Act of Arizona, A.R.S. § 44-1801, et seq., in connection with this Order To Cease and Desist, Order of Disgorgement, Order for Administrative Penalties and Consent to Same (“Order”). Each of TIERRA, PRESERVATION, PARTNERSHIP PT, CATERPILLAR, and COUCH, collectively “RESPONDENTS,” admit the jurisdiction of the Arizona Corporation Commission (“Commission”); neither admit nor deny the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law contained in this Order; and consent to the entry of this Order by the Commission.

I.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. In the mid 1980’s, COUCH began forming a variety of limited partnerships for the purpose of acquiring undeveloped parcels of real estate throughout the metro Phoenix area. In connection with the offer and sale of these limited partnership units to hundreds of Arizona investors, COUCH raised large amounts of investment capital and began purchasing various plots of real estate in the west valley of Phoenix.

2. Shortly thereafter, COUCH founded and became president of TIERRA, an Arizona corporation involved in local land speculation, investment and development. As part of the company’s operations, TIERRA participated in the real estate activities of COUCH’s various partnerships, and subsequently participated in the solicitation of investment funds for the purpose of acquiring unwanted and/or defaulting partnership units.

1       3. By 1990, COUCH was a general partner of at least a dozen limited partnerships; however,
2 a number of these were enduring financial set-backs and other business-related difficulties. On
3 account of these developments, COUCH proposed the consolidation of all his existing partnerships
4 into one all-encompassing partnership to facilitate a new land acquisition.

5       The creation of Partnership Preservation Trust

6       4. During the summer of 1990, COUCH effected this proposal by rolling his existing limited
7 partnerships into a new entity known as PARTNERSHIP PT. As detailed in a June 1990 letter to his 8 limited partners, COUCH explained the consolidation of the following limited partnerships into
9 PARTNERSHIP PT: Plumlee; Tierra Verde; KLB; Helms; RRR & D; Boreyko, GWP, Johnson &
10 Thomas, SV 40, MB, West Valley, Cortez, JRH, Eye West, One Iron, Antenucci, Lawrence, and 11 BLAC limited partnerships.

12       5. In connection with this consolidation, COUCH informed the various partners that they 13 would still have to make annual dues payment as described under their original limited partnership
14 agreements if they were to remain as partners in the new PARTNERSHIP PT. The annual 15 membership dues were ostensibly used to cover acquisition costs, miscellaneous expenses and 16 management fees.

17       6. COUCH also explained that PARTNERSHIP PT would now be targeting a “promising”
18 Buckeye Airport property, one consisting of five separate parcels that the JRH, Eye West, One Iron,
19 Antenucci, Lawrence, and BLAC limited partnerships had purchased from Alder Farms in June 1990
20 for approximately $520,000 per parcel. In September 1990, COUCH paid approximately $580,000
21 on behalf of PARTNERSHIP PT for each of these five parcels.

22       7. Through PARTNERSHIP PT, COUCH paid for the “Buckeye Airport” property by 23 assuming the original five Alder Farms debts from the earlier partnership purchases, assuming five
24 $126,000 promissory notes to TIERRA representing monies that the other general partners had taken
25 out of TIERRA, and paying approximately $100,000 in additional earnest money and closing costs.

1       8. By August 1991, PARTNERSHIP PT had title over these five Buckeye properties and the
2 properties had been recorded in the partnership's name. By mid 1992, however, PARTNERSHIP
3 PT had defaulted on the parcels' mortgage payments, and in July 1992, Alder Farms foreclosed on 4 the five properties. Alder Farms reclaimed title to the properties in August, 1992.

5       The McDowell Property and the ascendancy of Preservation Corporation

6       9. In September 1992, PARTNERSHIP PT ostensibly acquired a new property in Buckeye,
7 Arizona at the intersection of McDowell and Dean Road (the "McDowell Property"). The 8 McDowell Property was purchased from Citibank, and consisted of four parcels of land totaling 9 approximately 149 acres.

10      10. Despite the fact that financing for this property originated out of the contributions of 11 PARTNERSHIP PT investors, and despite describing this particular acquisition as PARTNERSHIP
12 PT'S newest asset, the property was nevertheless titled in the name of PRESERVATION. COUCH
13 had founded and become president of the Arizona-based PRESERVATION just weeks before, in the 14 summer of 1992.

15      11. COUCH subsequently claimed that this property was titled in the name of 16 PRESERVATION rather than PARTNERSHIP PT simply because the seller of the McDowell
17 property – Citibank - preferred to sell the property to a corporation rather than a partnership.

18      12. In connection with the acquisition of this property, COUCH issued various 19 communications referencing the fact that PARTNERSHIP PT's new asset consisted of only 100
20 acres, when in fact the property actually consisted of approximately 149 acres. COUCH did not
21 disclose to investors that he was ultimately planning to designate a third of the McDowell Property
22 for ulterior purposes.

23       Transitions on the McDowell Property: bankruptcy, refinancing and the transfer of title

24      13. In 1994, PRESERVATION filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy, attempting to re-organize its 25 liabilities on the McDowell Property and on other debt obligations. During the course of this 26

1 bankruptcy, Citibank filed a motion to lift the automatic stay and foreclose upon the McDowell
2 Property that it sold to PRESERVATION just two years earlier.

3 14. Citibank and PRESERVATION ultimately reached a settlement whereby the bank agreed
4 to accept $245,000 as payment in full for the remaining balance of approximately $345,000 owed on 5 the McDowell Property. PRESERVATION satisfied this agreement by paying Citibank $55,000 in 6 cash and taking out a $190,000 loan from Stardust Development ("Stardust") for the remaining
7 balance in November 1994.

8 15. With the McDowell Property no longer in jeopardy of foreclosure, PRESERVATION
9 withdrew its bankruptcy filing. It did, however, still have a $190,000 note to satisfy from Stardust
10 with an annual interest rate of 23 per cent. Partners were not privy to this bankruptcy filing nor the 11 subsequent refinancing arrangement.

12 16. By 1995, PRESERVATION had a promissory note outstanding against Stardust for 13 approximately $190,000, and both TIERRA and PRESERVATION had a number of promissory
14 note obligations coming due to individual investors.

15 17. In early 1997, COUCH set out to raise capital to meet his companies' various accruing debt 16 obligations and to satisfy purported financial obligations to a local land developer by attempting to 17 sell 30 to 50 acres of the McDowell Property. These initial sales efforts, unknown to members of 18 PARTNERSHIP PT, proved unsuccessful.

19 18. In late 1997, COUCH changed course by covertly deeding the bulk of the McDowell
20 Property over from PRESERVATION to himself and his wife. At approximately the same time,
21 COUCH also transferred one 10 acre parcel of the McDowell Property over to a group made up of 22 Thora, L.L.C. and Blackbourne L.L.C. According to COUCH, this 10 acre transfer was to satisfy
23 prior land improvement and land appraisal/marketing services.

24 19. This transfer of property occurred without the requisite authority or disclosures, and 25 without the limited partners' knowledge or consent. The type of consideration tendered in this 26

1 particular transaction, and the party or parties receiving such consideration, was similarly not 2 disclosed.

3 Generating additional capital through the sale of “bridge financing notes”

4 20. In connection with these land acquisitions and related dealings, COUCH also began
5 engaging in the sale of promissory notes to both existing limited partners and outside investors. As 6 early as 1990, COUCH began participating in the issuance of “bridge loan” promissory notes
7 through two of his real estate entities - TIERRA and PRESERVATION. These notes offered
8 investors an approximate 10 to 14 per cent rate of return per annum, and the maturity dates on these 9 notes regularly ranged from 3 to 5 years.

10 21. For orchestrating or otherwise participating in these promissory note sales, COUCH often 11 retained percentages of the investment proceeds. This practice was withheld from investors.

12 22. The purported objective behind COUCH’S bridge notes was to meet ongoing real estate
13 payment obligations, to fund the purchase of available limited partnership units in PARTNERSHIP
14 PT, and to pay accruing management fees prior to the time that PARTNERSHIP PT’S asset could be 15 liquidated. In fact, the investment funds acquired through the sale of these notes were soon 16 designated for an unrelated purpose.

17 23. The proceeds raised from COUCH’S sale of promissory notes through the late 1990’s
18 were used in part to satisfy the debt obligations of prior note holders. On dozens of occasions, the 19 monies raised from the sale of TIERRA or PRESERVATION promissory notes were immediately
20 transferred to other bank accounts for use in satisfying prior note obligations. Often, monies raised
21 through the sale of these notes were transferred to other investors on the same or very next day.

22 24. COUCH and his associate, Walt Cunningham, Jr., continued to sell promissory notes
23 issued by one or more of TIERRA or PRESERVATION, and later CATERPILLAR, until late 2000,
24 when the promissory note sales operations finally ran out of funds.

25 ...

26 ...

Yet another claim to the McDowell Property: Caterpillar

25. In 1998, COUCH founded and became general partner of yet another Arizona partnership known as CATERPILLAR. As represented in its offering literature, CATERPILLAR was again involved in local land speculation, investment and development throughout the greater Phoenix area.

26. To fund the company's business plans, CATERPILLAR engaged in the solicitation of investment funds from limited partners for the alleged purpose of buying parcels of real estate in the greater Phoenix area. Although the specific identity of the land to be pursued by CATERPILLAR was never disclosed, COUCH later claimed that CATERPILLAR was actually formed to acquire a 20 acre section of the McDowell Property.

27. CATERPILLAR raised over $250,000 in investment monies to fund its operations. Although offering materials claimed that these funds were to be used to purchase real estate for subsequent resale, the investment monies were in fact once again transferred to meet the debt obligations of prior investors holding PRESERVATION and/or TIERRA promissory notes.

28. None of the CATERPILLAR note proceeds were used to purchase real estate or any other form of property, and CATERPILLAR investors were never informed that their investment monies were being used solely to satisfy prior corporate debt obligations.

Use of the McDowell Property for personal loans

29. COUCH ultimately explored the option of mortgaging the remaining parcels of land for additional funds. Beginning in 1999, COUCH contacted various commercial mortgage companies in an effort to draw upon the equity of the McDowell Property at the expense of the many PARTNERSHIP PT partners. Ultimately, COUCH was successful in obtaining a mortgage on the McDowell Property from SMT Investors Limited Partnership ("SMT"), David and Christine Neal (the "Neals"), and the Arizona Land Advisors Profit Sharing Plan ("AZ Land Advisors") for $490,000. This secured debt was incurred by COUCH and his wife, respondent Terry Couch, on or about September 17, 1999.

1       30. COUCH's dissipation of the equity of PARTNERSHIP PT's sole asset was unauthorized
2 both under PARTNERSHIP PT'S offering documents and under the partnership's operating 3 agreement.

4       31. COUCH ultimately borrowed funds from SMT, the Neals and AZ Land Advisors on two
5 additional occasions, drawing a $162,000 note on the McDowell Property on or about September 14,
6 2000, and adding another $102,177 to the total outstanding debt on June 12, 2001. In total, the 7 principal amount of indebtedness incurred on the McDowell Property by COUCH from 1999 to 8 2001 amounted to approximately $754,000. This total does not include substantial interest, accruing
9 on the debt at rates ranging from approximately 12 to 20 per cent per annum.

10       32. COUCH used the proceeds from these loans for various undisclosed purposes, including
11 personal expenditures and the infusion of capital into COUCH's personal nutritional supplement
12 business known as Infinity 2.

13       33. In October 2000, COUCH and respondent Terry Couch deeded the remaining McDowell
14 Property back to PRESERVATION, now consisting of 10 less acres or approximately 139 acres of 15 land. In re-acquiring the McDowell Property, PRESERVATION also inherited COUCH'S
16 mortgage liability – a loan secured against the property for roughly $1,074,000.

17       34. Unlike COUCH, PARTNERSHIP PT investors were not privy to, nor did they derive a 18 direct benefit from, the secured debts attached to the partnership's single real estate asset.

19       35. Once again under PRESERVATION's control, the McDowell Property endured on the 20 open market through the next year. By 2001, the remaining note holders and the limited partners had 21 still not recouped any return on their investments. Concerned over the defaulting notes and lack of 22 movement on the property supporting the limited partners' interest, one or more of the investors filed
23 a Petition for Involuntary Bankruptcy against RESPONDENTS and all affiliated entities.

24       36. The bankruptcy was subsequently converted to Chapter 11 liquidation, and the bankruptcy
25 proceedings remain in progress. The McDowell Property has since been liquidated for the sum of 26 approximately $2.9 million, which amounts are being held in escrow for subsequent distribution until

1 the various creditors' claims are resolved. The proceeds from this liquidation will not be sufficient to 2 make the investors from the various partnership and note programs whole.

3 Misappropriations

4 37. Based on Securities Division records, at least 170 investors invested in one or more of 5 COUCH'S limited partnerships and/or promissory note offerings from approximately 1989 to 2001.
6 During this time, several million dollars passed through these programs.

7 38. Throughout the course of this 12 year period, COUCH and/or COUCH's immediate family
8 repeatedly received unauthorized financial benefits from these investment programs.

9 39. The misappropriation of investor funds included, without limitation, each of the following:
10 a) the use of limited partnership funds for the payment of insurance policy premiums; b) the use of 11 limited partnership funds for personal expenditures; c) the mortgaging of partnership assets and the 12 retention of a portion of the subsequent loan proceeds for personal use; d) the routing of promissory 13 note investment proceeds into individual accounts for personal use; e) the use of promissory note 14 proceeds to pay for personal debt obligations including professional service expenses; and f) the use
15 of promissory note proceeds to finance unrelated corporate expenses and obligations.

16 40. In total, COUCH and/or his immediate family misappropriated at least $549,084 in investor
17 funds from the various of COUCH's limited partnership and promissory note programs.
